

1. To be ready to learn all kind of knowledge that are needed for change to accommodate national and international health systems.
2. To comprehend business functions and basic concepts of healthcare management.
3. To manage and organize health institutions.
4. To realize local, national and international social issues of health sector and carry out solutions.
5. To be able to determine goals, objectives and strategies of health institutions and analyze internal and external environment of organizations.
6. To be able to build a mission and a vision for health institutions.
7. To know communication techniques intended to patients and patient relatives and to analyze and implement these techniques in health institutions.
8. To be able to manage public relations in health institutions and explain communications processes.
9. To be able to implement modern human resource managemet techniques in health institutions.
10. To be able to be a self-reliant, ethic, productive, leader health worker with the awareness of professional ethics and social responsibilities.
11. To be able to make and analyze field studies.
12. To be able to analyze health politics and economic life in national and international health systems.
13. To implement the bases of financial management in healthcare.
14. To be able to use accounting and cost information systems in healthcare.
15. To comprehend the processes of marketing management, purchasing, logistics and total quality management.