

Upon successful completion of the programme, the student is able:

1. To implement the basis of business functions in healthcare.
2. To study interdisciplinary.
3. To use statistical techniques, make a research, analyze the solutions and give proposals in health science.
4. To accommodate changes and innovations in global competition.
5. To learn professional management and leadership in healthcare.
6. To develop scientific thinking and interpretation.
7. To analyze economic processes in national and international health sector.
8. To produce solutions for social and economic problems in and out of the organizations.
9. To have effective communication skills intended to patients.
10. To finance the health institutions effectively.
11. To use accounting and cost systems correctly in health institutions.
12. To manage health institutions with total quality perspective.
13. To manage public relations effectively.