

Program Outcomes

1. The ability to monitor, analyse, and assess theoretical and practical changes that occurs in the field of government, law, politics, urbanization, and environment at the national and international level.
2. The ability to develop strategy, politics, and application plan related with public administration, and to evaluate the obtained results. To strengthen the analysis and design process for the problem has a defined target in line with the perspective of public administration processes
3. To endow with the ability to consider social, scientific and ethical values in the processes of gathering, interpreting and announcing data in relation to administration, politics, law, urbanisation and environment.
4. The ability to pursue social, scientific, and ethical values at the stage of the gathering, interpreting, and announcing the data that is in related with government, politics, law, urbanization, and environment.
5. The ability to narrate the contemporary changes which occurs in the field of public administration, and their own studies.
6. Raising professional and ethical responsibility.